On the Subject of Landlord scheduler

Landlords can be anoying, whats more anoying is when they always tell you another time and date for an appointment. Well have fun !

This module uses a phone present on the desk next to the bomb. If it is not present the module will auto solve.

At the start the prompted date should be the one from your clock at home. This date will be the bottom line you won't be able to choose a date before this one.

Correct dates are all within 3 year from the bottom line.

For this module, your landlord will periodically text you about scheduling an appointment. You will have to navigate lies and deceit to find out a valid date. Input your valid date to solve the module.

Your landlord takes his time to message you but when he does he expects you to answer quick ! Answer or in his anger he will strike your bomb.

When given multiple statment with information on the date at least one will be true. When there is only one statement it could be either true or false.

But each lie are at least within 6 month of the talked correct date. Beware the landlord might send further message about another correct date since many date the landlord as in mind might be valid, however through texting the landlord will invalidate certain dates. With luck you might get many date to choose from !

People often say that when your looking at you text expecting a message it will never show up.

When your landlord text you a number of responses will appear, choose one to either agree with a statement, or try and contradict a lie. Afterwards a reply will come in, judge from this reply if you made a correct choice.

Find out with all the clues, you've gathered the correct date to input. Make sure to ignore all dates you know are a lie.

When multiple of such modules are on the bomb, a number will be shown on each module. When you recieve a text the corresponding module number will be shown next to it. Each landlords will have different dates try not to mix and match.